Red Rockin'

Detours' five-day trip through Arizona's Navajo and Hopi country features some of the reddest rocks on Earth and some of the most fascinating cultures on Earth. From Phoenix, the van trip heads north through Sedona, then swings by Flagstaff before arriving at the Grand Canyon's South Rim. You visit the rock formations of Monument Valley, learn about the mysterious Anasazi Indians of Canyon de Chelly, see Dawah Park's 1,000 perfectly preserved petroglyphs, and eat blue corn tortillas and sip wild herb tea in the home of a Hopi villager. But the most memorable part of your trip just may be the stories told by your Indian guides along the way. For more information visit detoursaz.com. —MICHELLE MAGENHEIM
